LATEST NEWS ON TWO BRANDS AND THEIR EFFECTS ON STOCK PRICE

Turkish Airlines

According to Hurriyet, Turkish Airlines and Turkish Aerospace Industries have signed a protocol to increase their level of partnership on 15 February 2018. They'll mostly cooperate in civil and military aircraft productions and technical issues. Additionally, the CEOs of the companies, state that this cooperation will help the sector to be developed and enlarged (Hurriyet, 2018).

The Effect on Stock Price:

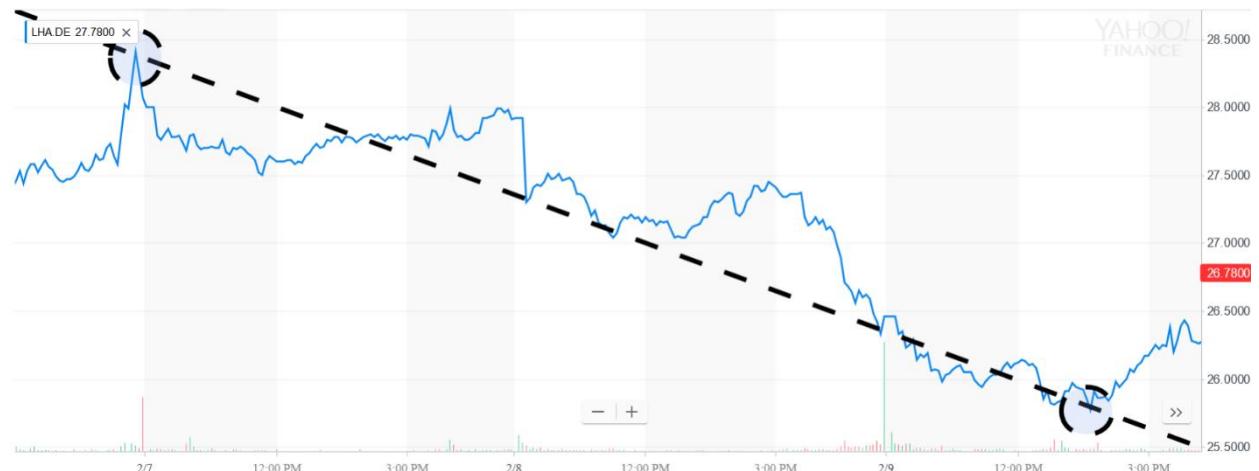

It can be observed that there is a trend line which is increasing after the protocol agreement. As a result, there is a positive correlation between the sign of protocol and the stock price of THY.

Lufthansa

According to Marketing Interactive, the logo of Lufthansa has been redesigned. The old logo had served approximately for a century. After 7 February 2018, the new logo will start to be used. The company claims that this change creates a perception that the company is different and special from the other companies (Marketing Interactive, 2018).

The Effect on Stock Price:

It can be observed that there is a trend line which is decreasing after the redesigning of the logo. As a result, there is a negative correlation between the redesigning and the stock price of Lufthansa.

[The chart of Marketing expenses over the years]

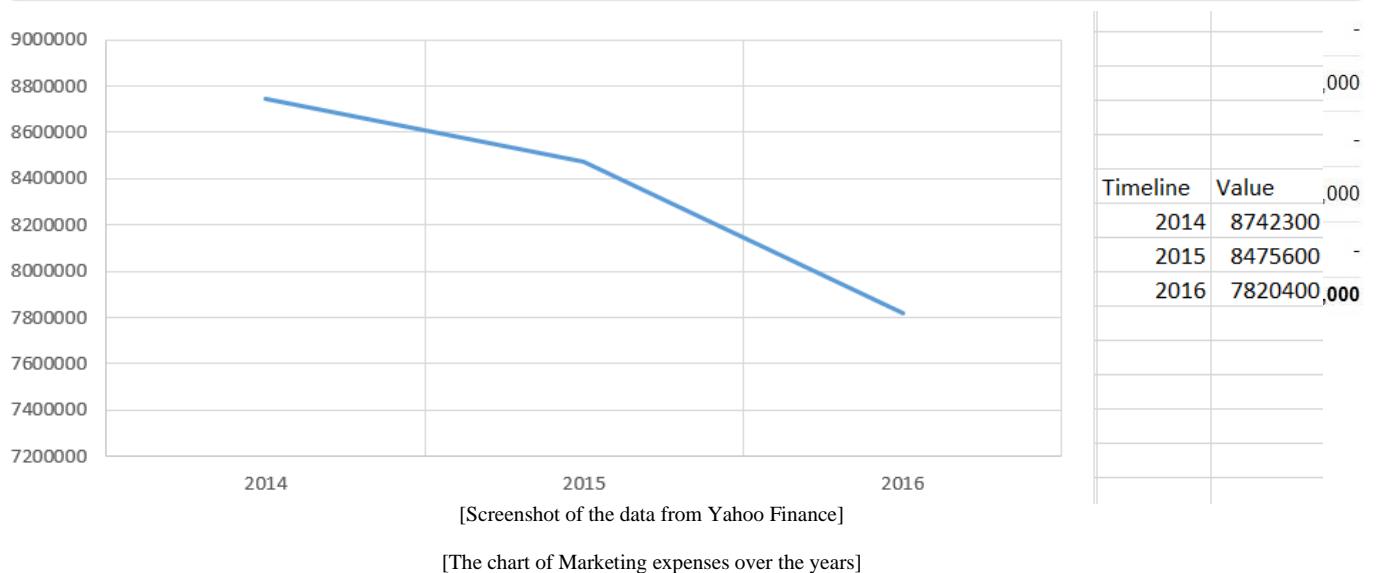

The chart shows that approximate marketing expenses of THY has an increasing trend line between the years 2013 and 2016. Additionally, the slope of the trend line is same over the years. This means that THY has a strategy which gives importance to the marketing. For that reason, they increase marketing expenses over the years with similar increase rate (Yahoo Finance, 2018).

Lufthansa

The following data from Yahoo Finance shows the Operating expenses of Lufthansa. The most related part to the marketing expenses is the data Selling General and Administrative. It can be assumed that the 70% of the Selling General and Administrative is approximately the marketing expenses by the company.

Operating Expenses

The chart shows that approximate marketing expenses of Lufthansa has a decreasing trend line between the years 2014 and 2016. However, this is a small decrease rate, relatively to the increase rate of marketing expenses of THY. Although, there is decrease over the marketing expenses, it can be claimed that they nearly spend the same amount money for marketing between 2014 and 2016 with small decrease rate (Yahoo Finance, 2018).

TURKISH AIRLINES

Strength: Services and customer satisfaction are internal environment because they depend on the company itself. According to the Turkish Airlines 2015 annual report, dishes served on airplanes were diversified and chefs started to prepare meals (THY Annual Report 2015, p.40). At the same time, some aircraft has wireless and some of the next generation aircraft began broadcasting (THY Annual Report 2015, p.41). These innovations have played a role in the selection of Turkish Airlines for the flight of passengers (THY Annual Report 2015, p.41). As a proof, Haberturk states that THY has 85% success of consumer satisfaction according to Which? (Haberturk, 2016).

Weakness: Expensive ticket prices are internal environment because they are a part of the marketing strategy of the company. High ticket prices appeal to a certain group of people with a specific financial income. This situation decreases the number of customers by narrowing the spectrum of customers.

Opportunity: Geographical location is external environment because it depends on the location of Turkey. World passenger traffic has risen 5.9% in 2014 and 5.6% in the last decade (Karahan, p.20). Our country is well above this value and our civil aviation has begun to take a bigger share in the transportation of global citizens (Karahan p.20). Turkey, with its geographical position in the airline transport has an important place and shows the importance of constantly increasing air traffic. Due to its geographical location in the airline transportation, Turkey has an important place in sector.

Threat:

Terrorism and wars cause confusion in certain areas, which leads to a decrease in travel to those zones. Also, confidence in airplanes that land in that area is reduced. This leads to a decrease in the number of flights and the company to do less work. Turkish Airlines has seen a 50% drop in its domestic / international traffic, and the work of some employees has been terminated accordingly (Kışioğlu, 2014).

LUFTHANSA

Strength: Coverage depends on the company marketing strategies therefore, it is an internal environment. Lufthansa has many central offices in Europe. Lufthansa is also part of Star Alliance which also includes Thai Airways International, United Airlines, Air Canada and Scandinavian Airlines (Bhasin, 2017). Lufthansa also provides full coverage to the area. This situation also triggers customers to prefer Lufthansa on flights in many different countries.

Weakness: Poor labor relations can be improved; therefore, it is internal environment. The company has had bad times because of problems with its employees. These problems even caused strikes. Lufthansa had a big strike at 2012 (BBC, 2012). That strike effected flight of 43 thousand passengers (Milliyet, 2012). The strikes that company has experienced in the past may cause the passengers to be hesitant to receive tickets.

Opportunity: Increase in foreign travel is external environment because it depends on change in consumer profile over years. As there are numerous businesses open to various parts of the world, the international travel opportunity has increased considerably (Bhasin, 2017). The increase in the number of places to go with a single airline company made Lufthansa the top choice as a good choice.

Threat: Increased cost depends on external products; therefore, it is external environment. 24.4% of the monthly deviations between oil prices and Lufthansa are eliminated (Eyüboğlu, K & Eyüboğlu S, 2016). Because of the maintenance and labor costs increase, the service price also increases. This price increase can lead some customers to more affordable competitors, leading to customer loss.

GROWTH STRATEGIES

Turkish Airlines

Turkish Airlines is one of the fastest growing and successful airline in the world. The company maintains their growing by practicing some strategies. Market development and market penetration are one of these strategies which Turkish Airlines use.

As market development Turkish airlines aims that adding new destinations and going different places is an important growing strategy. According to Kemal Kizilay, Turkish Airlines had started their first direct flights from Istanbul to Miami at 25th October 2015 and this leads to an increase in the number of passengers by %65 in Istanbul-Miami line (Vatan, 2018).

Also, they want to be an international player, so they joined the Star Alliance in 2008 (Lida Mantzavinou, 2011). This partnership helped them to advertise their name and it is a good movement for market development.

They use market penetration while they are growing. They make sponsorships with giant sport clubs such as Barcelona and celebrity endorsements with Kobe Bryant etc. These acts helped the company to achieve higher brand recognition around the globe.

Lufthansa Airlines

Lufthansa Airlines is the leading airline group in Europe. They use strategies while they are playing number one in Europe.

They pay attention to product development. According to Lufthansa Group, they are replacing older aircrafts with more recent models with higher seating capacities and greater fuel efficiency without increasing the total number of aircrafts (Annual Report,2016).

In addition, they add new destinations for developing their market. According to Lufthansa Group, they make new additions to their destinations such as Heraklion and Seville to Lufthansa's flight Schedule (2015).

THE RESPONSIBILITY PROJECTS

Turkish Airlines

Turkish Airlines pay attention to making some social responsibilities not just in Turkey but also all around the world.

Their motto is ‘caring all nationalities’. They try to put all nationalities under one umbrella (THY, 2018).

SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY PROJECTS:

1 million saplings ,1 million smiling children: Turkish Airlines plants saplings for every infant passenger that flies with them. In 2014, Turkish Airlines established memorial forests in 19 cities. In 2015, they set their target of planting add up to of one million saplings over it provinces (THY, 2018).

School visits from the Turkish airlines flight team: Volunteers from cabin crew and cockpit crew made visits to schools under the name of the Turkish Airlines flight team. They talked with children about topics such as aviation, aerodynamics, aircraft speed and the wonders of the first flight. They also gave children a present like Turkish timber aircraft models, kites and other similar gifts (THY, 2018).

Kite festival: With the help of the volunteers, Turkish Airlines organized a kite festival for almost 200 orphans in 2014. They moreover made space for instructive exercises at the festival which was joined by Turkish and Syrian orphans living in social administrations ‘affection homes’ and other orphanages financed by various organizations (THY, 2018).

The social responsibility project from THY in Japan: In 2011, there was a big earthquake and a tsunami occurred in Japan. Japanese people suffered from these natural disasters. After this sad event, Turkish Airlines supported the development of the region and tried the help of the citizens. Also, they put their logos on the Sanriku Railways at the state of the Iwate. With this movement, they want to give a message to Japanese people that “we are here for you.” Also, the advertising revenue of this project donated to that damaged region and its people (Taskiran, 2015).

Lufthansa Airlines

The Lufthansa Group has more than 128,000 representatives around the world. With a wide range of options for proceeding education and adaptable working hours, they have choices for their professional improvement and keeping up an expert knowledge, and for making career and family consistent. The highly motivated and qualified team of employees from 144 diverse nations is thus as well prepared as possible for the future’s challenges. Working at Lufthansa Group has numerous features. But the focus is always on people (Lufthansa, 2018).

SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY PROJECTS:

- 1- The non-for-profit organization now covers around 30 projects from around the World under one umbrella, which intended to help young people to access education and to enable them to lead self-determined lives in accordance with motto ‘Closer to the World. Closer to its people’ (Lufthansa, 2018).

- 2- In the past few years, 140 projects have been supported. The content of the projects corresponds with the strict standards of the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child and the sustainable goals of the UN for 2030 (Lufthansa, 2018).
- 3- They constituted the system of fuel saving. By the way, they support the ecological system. They try to help to stop the global warming and protect the climate (Lufthansa, 2018).

In brief, the Lufthansa Group cares about all nationalities and the environment. In fact, their motto gives us a clue about it. There is no racism, they don't make any discrimination. You can be black or white, it is not a problem for them. They focused on humanity. So, people make their decisions according to their way of thinking. At the end they gain success.

HALO AWARDS

Both Turkish Airlines and Lufthansa Airlines do not have any halo awards.

If we need to give an example it can be the Canada and West-Jet Airlines. They cooperated with the “Make a Wish” organization and made help to the sick children. They had a fight for making better treatments for their medical conditions. They made a partnership together and made a video for these sick children. Their aim is to announce the necessities of these children to the public by publishing this video. According to Engage for Good, the video garnered 4.2 million total views on Facebook and YouTube—1.2 million on Facebook and 302,000 in the first 24 hours (2017). At the end, the impressions about the make a wish organization increased and a lot of people had an information about them.

REPORT 2

Lufthansa Airlines has two main target markets which are leisure market and business market.

While making our survey, we will focus on the business market. For business market, we can assume that the age interval is between 35-55, the education level is at least graduate, and the income level is higher than $50000. Euro-stats claims that there are 26 million active enterprises with some 144 million persons employed in Europe (Euro-stats, 2017). From this data, it can be predicted that there are approximately 500.000 business men/women in Turkey who are suitable to the business market definition. According to Survey System, there should be 384 people to sample 500.000 business people with confidence level %95 and confidence interval 5 (Survey System). For example, if the survey indicates that %70 of the business market thinks that the change of a logo is influential, which means that the company can rely on the result with %95 confidence level and 5 confidence intervals. As a result, the survey indicates that (with a high possibility (%95), and a less mean squarer error (5)) approximately %65-75 of business market would choose “Yes” as an answer.

In the focus group we will concentrate on both leisure and business market. We will choose 8 people, 4 of them is from business market and the other half is from leisure market. We will ask them 5 questions which are slightly discussible.

To decide whether to change the logo of the company is influential or not, it is better to use surveys to understand the reaction and ideas of the consumers. Moreover, to decide the shape or the color of the logo, it is more effective to conduct experiments to observe the effects of redesign over the costumers. Additionally, if the aim is to understand the reasons behind the logo redesign it is better to create focus group discussions.

As a team, we choose to fill out two surveys which are related to the ‘spending habits’:

The first one is The Experiential Buying Tendency Scale which is developed by Dr. Ryan Howell at San Francisco State University. The survey indicates that whether a consumer is most likely to spend his or her money on material things or life experiences. Moreover, they claim consumers which spend their money on life experiences are relatively happier than the ones who spend their money on material things. As a conclusion, the survey shows that people who are willing to gain new experiences from the life, tend to spend more on life experiences, on the other hand people who have less tendency to face with new experiences in life, spend more money on material things (Beyond the Purchase, 2018).

The second one is the Motivations for Experiential Buying Scale which is developed by Garg Zhang. There are three main reasons to buy life experiences intrinsic, extrinsic and without any reason. The survey basically indicates that which reason a consumer spends his/her money on life experience. Moreover, only the ones who spend their money on life experience with intrinsic reasons are relatively happier than the others. As a conclusion, the survey indicates the reason behind the purchase of the life experiences (Beyond the Purchase, 2018).

Our brands are Turkish Airlines and Lufthansa. Their main target is people who regularly use the airplane. As it can be predicted, the ones who spend more money on life experience will regularly buy more tickets. In that manner, the first survey can be used to determine the people who spend more money on and give more importance to life experiences. Additionally, when they find their target market as the ones who spend more money on life experiences, the brands should distinguish the reasons behind the choices. At that point, the second survey can indicate the reasons behind the choices. As a result, the brands can develop different marketing strategies to distinctly reach the people who give more importance to new life experiences with different reasons. For example, THY made a YouTube advertisement which is called “Widen Your World” and they add this feature to their website to especially reach the people who give more importance to new life experiences. It is an example that the surveys can be used in promotion in 4Ps.

[Screenshot of THY Widen New World page]

Conclusion, both surveys can be used to reach and restrict the target market to be more efficient in marketing.

PART 2

Main Differences:

- 1) It is possible to search on amazon.com without an account but to search on smileamazon.com it is necessary to sign in with an amazon account.

- 2) smileamazon.com operates with the exact same products and prices with amazon.com but the %0.5 of the price of the eligible products is donated charity of consumer decision (Bloom Worldwide, 2017).

The one of the potential reason Amazon creates smileamazon.com is decoy effect. If they use smile feature in the main website still consumers would have the same choice whether to buy or not. However, when they publish smileamazon.com they've created the third option is a possibility to help charities by buying products. It creates an asymmetric dominance because amazon.com becomes the inferior good with same prices, same product but without the charity feature. As a result, the main reason is to make smileamazon.com superiority but to achieve that they keep amazon.com as the inferior good.

On the other hand, it does not work in that sense. It can be explained by the term “default effect (Status Quo bias)”. It is difficult to change the website for consumers because most of the consumers get used to search on the amazon.com. Therefore, consumers less tend to use smileamozon.com.

The main reason is to create a different website “smileamazon.com” is priming the consumer. When the consumer uses the interface smileamazon.com they are attracted by the website content “Donate to a charity”. It basically misleads consumers to expand more money and makes them think as they can help to charities by buying new products, indeed they forget to truth that Amazon makes a lot of profit from the smileamazon.com and the donation is just %0.5 of the purchase price.

PART 1:

Segmentation and targeting strategies are one of the most important factors of marketing. Segmentation means identifying the customer needs and segment the market according to similarities. If we segment the market properly we will become more successful at the end. After that we target the market. Targeting is evaluating market segments, focusing on one segment and ignore the others.

THY and Lufthansa are both global companies. Firstly, the target market can split into two parts as Business and Leisure for both. Also, the segments for both the targets may be gender, age, lifestyle, income, world region, life stage etc.

Business Market

According to Holodny, different regions have different gender ratio in business life. For example, in Arabia there are relatively more business men than business women. For these countries segmentation can be operated according to male gender. For example, in United Arab Emirates there are 274 business men over 100 business women. On the other hand, most of the countries (apart from United Arab Emirates) gender ratio are approximately same therefore, it is not the case to specify the segment according to gender (Business Insider, 2015). Additionally, business people's ages are between 30-55 and in that ages most of them are married. Also, their income will be more than 100.000 USD per year.

As it mentioned in the previous paragraph, it is better to segment the market according to gender in some regions. Additionally, it can be researched that which countries have intense flight-flow among them, so they can change or redesign their promotions. Moreover, every country even city has different kind of tastes, choices etc. According the features of the region, country or cities, product, promotions can be changed. Especially for business people, service and comfort is crucial when they choose which airways company to travel.

For segmentation, also it is important to correspond to the life style of the consumers. Especially, most of the business people have less time and they are busy people. Therefore, time arrival can be very crucial for this segmentation. Probably, if they encounter a problem with timing issue, they would tend to change their airways company for the next time.

Leisure Market

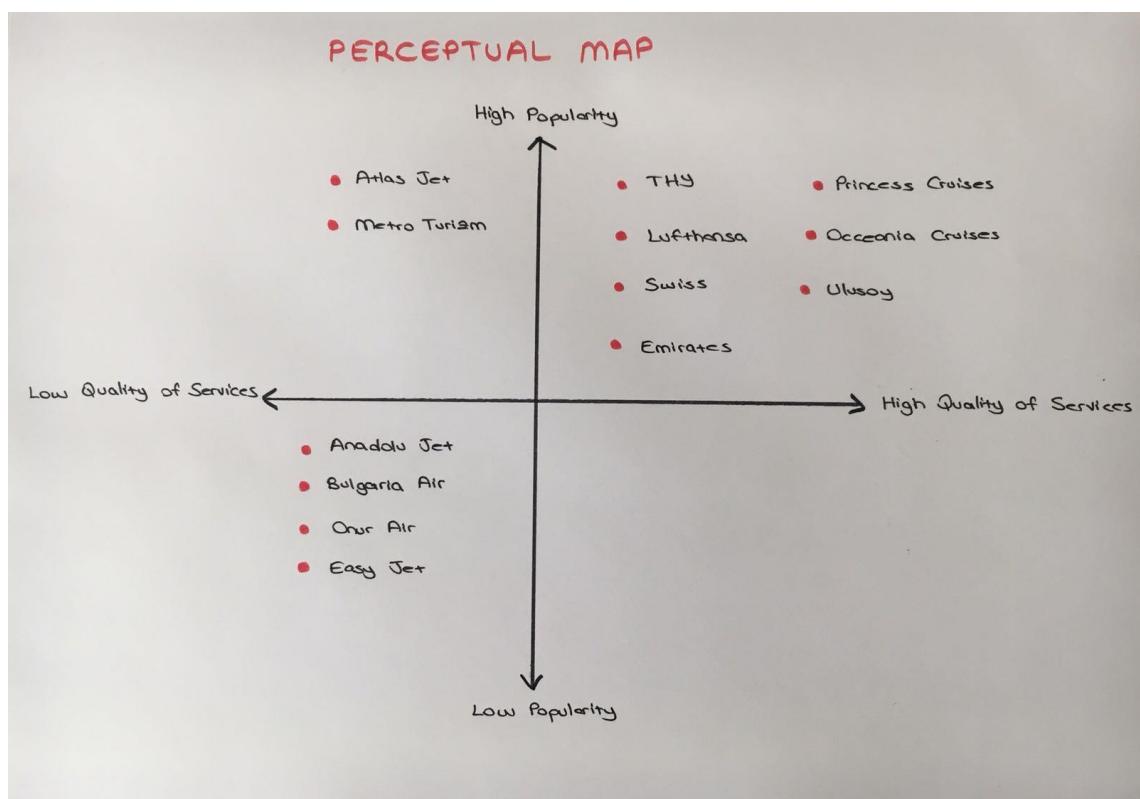

For Leisure Market, segmentation is more detailed and specified compared to Business Market.

Firstly, gender differentiation is not logical because there is no direct relation between gender and buying service. On the other hand, it can split into three subsegment by different ages like 18-25, 25-40 and 40-70 because every different kind of age level has different kinds of choices and likes. For example, Amsterdam can be more attractive for young people than elder people. Another important specification is life stage and income. Specially, low income people may tend to travel to near location or cheaper destinations on the contrary, high income level people may choose far and expensive locations to visit. For example, in the website of THY, there are options in “Widen Your World” part that people can choose 3 options as most popular, lowest price and highest price. (THY,2018)

Furthermore, the geography is crucial for marketing. As mentioned in the paragraph 2 in business market, the choices, tastes and expectations from the company may differ from region to region, country to country even city to city. For example, there may be some cities which are divine for some religions and naturally, there will be more interest to these kinds of cities from the countries which has more people with same religion. Another example, a service sandwich may be more liked by costumers from a country, but the same sandwich may be liked less by consumers who are from different country.

Also, lifestyle is very crucial for segmentation. The lifestyle can give clue about what kind of occasions would be effective in promotions. For example, if there are enough people who are interested in sports events, there will be a tendency to buy ticket to where there is a huge sports competition etc. As similarly, as mentioned in the Report 4 personality also is important part of segmentation. As it can be predicted, in the leisure market, the ones who give more importance to life-experiences would tend more to travel and see new locations. Therefore, for both airways companies it is better to focus on life-experience customers. More precisely, there are huge number of teenagers from low or average income who haven't travelled to abroad. Both THY and Lufthansa may do research, experiment and survey to analyze the level of openness to experience and they may come up with a new service for that segment unless the segment is not sufficient enough to be invested

NICHE MARKETING

- Niche marketing is defined as a narrow, small marketing strategy that develops to better meet the needs and desires of a small consumer group with similar characteristic needs that require goods / services.
- This marketing method does not carry the major market feature.
- In this marketing type divide the target group into categories and divide by the areas of interest. It is very important in terms of marketing method that you clearly describe what kind of product or service you will offer on the market you are leading and introduce this product and service to your target.
- Niche Marketing is a clear example while producing expensive and luxurious vehicles that only a certain segment can buy. Mass marketing example of how a car company can produce all sorts of vehicles at affordable prices, while it is a model for Mass Marketing.

- For example, Lamborghini's targets are
 - *Age over 30's
 - *High income
 - *Rich premium personalities, celebrities.

- Lamborghini's are selling really high prices all over world. We can call it they made it for niche marketing in which car can cost upwards of $500,000.

- For example, few people like Lamborghini and buyer population is different. The niche marketing method is the result of filling these gaps.
- If this niche marketing example is differentiated marketing strategies can target more than one segment, Lamborghini, for example, can produce vehicles with lower engine volumes and lower horsepower to reach 2 different target masses. They can make both sporty and less powerful cars.
- With this segmentation the company can diversify their target consumer, for example Mercedes have different motor types in same model and they are in the super-sport car category. They have the lower engine types at C Class for example C180, C200D and, they have C63 AMG. They are totally different goal for selling strategy.
- If Lamborghini company use this segmentation strategy they have same opportunity with the Mercedes, same products in vehicle with different motor-type and horsepower.
- If they use this strategy they can wider their target scale for example; some of the college students wants to be cool as using super-sport cars and get a chance to use such a car at more affordable prices.
- People who wants to drive a super-sport car, but they are not a billionaire, they can buy this car with lower prices than the original version.

QUESTION 3

MANFLUENCERS TREND

According to John Johnson, manfluencers trend is the new marketing trend which is overturning the notions of gender roles in the supermarket and in the kitchen (Newser,2013). The companies design their products to catch the attention of guys. If we can give an example for that products this can be a yoghurt which named “Powerful Yoghurt” and designed for the man. This yoghurt includes more protein and the package of the yoghurt is produced with bigger servings and designed with the pictures of bull horns with the colors of black and red.

Also, according to Jennifer Abel this trend is against the gender inequality. There are women- based products in the market but no special products for the man. These products serve for gender equality and makes man to buy these products much more.

2 examples of brands that have responded to that trend:

- 1) Kraft Foods Group Inc.
- 2) General Mills Inc.

What about your brands? Do you see any potential for your brands to take advantage of that trend?

Both Turkish Airlines and Lufthansa Airlines can create some advertisements in terms of manfluencers trend. For example, compared to women, men probably fly with their children less in average. There can be discount for men who fly with their baby and, there can be an advertisement to encourage to fly with the kids(babies) for men. For instance, THY has a sponsorship with Barcelona football team. They may give a gift (tickets to El Classico with his family etc.) to the father who fly most with his baby in a year and call him as the father of the year. There can be such advertisements and events to respond the trend “manfluencers”.

REPORT 5

1) Product Line Decisions:

THY has variations of products for same functionality, need and same target(customers). Therefore, THY has another brand as Anadolu Jet. They basically target same need under different brand-name, lower prices and different names. This company seems to not belong to THY to not hurt the prestige of THY. This product line decision is called downward stretching. Although, there is a potential risk of cannibalization for THY, they manage this risk almost perfect therefore, there is no harm in terms of brand-image of THY.

THY and Lufthansa also have different types of lounges as CIP, VIP and target different target markets by having different kinds of tickets as First Class, Business Class and Economy Class. It can be called as filling (same brand-name different market). These are varieties under the same brand-name. This is called filling.

THY also own Turkish Cargo which available to transport any kinds of goods across the globe. Another example is that Lufthansa has Lufthansa Cargo which operates around the globe. Also, THY own Turkish Airlines Flight academy which offers flight services and training cadets. This is Product Mix in terms of product line decisions or these examples can be called as Brand Extension in terms of brand development.

2) Widen Your World:

THY introduce a new option in their website Widen Your World and they basically target the people who interested in new experiences (or basically travelling, discovering etc.). They make a YouTube advertisement to promote and attract these kinds of consumers. In that promotion, they have reached approximately 87 million views, it proves the huge success of this promotion. Additionally, they create option to have choice of price and location to target different income level of consumers.

GENERICIDE

A brand's use as a product name by losing its distinctive identity. This may lead to the brand losing its title. The process by which trademark rights are diminished or lost because of common use in the Marketplace. For example, while SelPak is a brand of handkerchief, it is now used as a product name because it is called SelPak instead of a handkerchief.

There is no example about ‘genericide’ for Turkish Airlines and Lufthansa Airlines.
Also, there is no potential risks for The companies.

EXAMPLES

JBT AeroTech

Jetway: The name commonly used to describe a closed road that extending from the terminal door to the aircraft. It also used in transit from ship to the port / port to the ship and from ship to ship.

The original name of Jetway is “Passenger Boarding Bridge”. However, the company JBT Aero-Tech used the word ‘Jetway’ instead of ‘Passenger Boarding Bridge’ at 2005. After that, the term ‘Passenger Boarding Bridge’ started to be mentioned as Jetway. Therefore, the is complainant about this situation because they cannot get their trademark rights of ‘Jetway’ since it became a generic term amongst everyone. For instance, other brands started to use jetway too, so the company couldn’t demonstrate jetway as a trademark. Overall, company started to become synonymous with “jetway” and the company was left in the shadow.

ASPRIN

Bayer AG produces Aspirin for headache and it becomes trademark over the World especially during World War 1. As a result, everybody has started to call the bills for headache or etc. as aspirin and the brand-name was left in the shadow (Consumerist, 2017)

| NESLIHAN | 300.000 TL | 20 TL | 200 TL | 600 TL | 100 TL | 300 TL |

These are the WTP list of each team member for the following products. Each of us have different perceptions of value. Those differences exist because of some reasons. Those reasons may be ;

1- Interest

Each team member has different kinds of interests. For example, women have much more interest in cosmetics than men. So, women have higher WTP to cosmetics. Our interests in products affects our decisions to pay for them.

2- Income Level

The income level can also specify the WTP value. Each of us have unequal income levels. This inequality limits our WTP decisions. If we do not have enough income level to buy something we want, we cannot reach our goal.

3- Familiarity

Familiarity also another important factor that affects our decisions when we are buying products. If we are used to some specific product and we get satisfied when we are using them, we generally prefer them without looking their prices. People mostly choose the products they get used to it and this situation throw the prices out of focus. Also, every person's familiarity with the products is different from each other.

4- Prestige

The prestige of products can influence our choices. If the product is popular and have high prestige, the WTP can get higher. The prestige and the WTP have directly proportional relationship. As an example, automobiles have lots of prestige for Neslihan and she gave the highest WTP value between us.

5- Experience

In addition, the experience we gained from the products determines the WTP value we gave. If I get some good experience from the athletic shoes and they give me some comfort I will give higher values of WT. In comparison, if someone gain some bad experiences from athletic shoes like easily damaged ones they want to give lowest prices to them.

Question 2

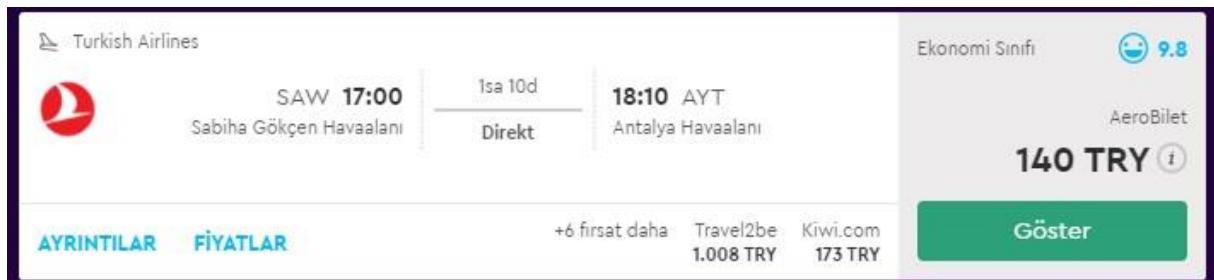

Comparing Prices

<https://www.turkishairlines.com>

<https://www.momondo.com.tr>

There are many factors that play a role in the pricing of a product. Pricing methods used at internet cost are based on some of these factors. While shopping on the internet, the website uses customer profile and dynamic pricing to determine the price.

Consumer profile:

The customer profile is formed when the internet users input information about their search history. Using consumer profiles for e-commerce sites is a bit complicated because people do not just stick to a website, but online companies have to market the product appropriately and market it to the right person. However, constant change of consumer profiles makes this process difficult.

Dynamic Pricing:

When someone looks at a flight from a computer, that computer cookie pops up. The price of that flight becomes higher than it was before when the same name is entered to same fly for the second time.

Some internet sites selling plane tickets can have a lot of tickets at a very cheap price because they have already bought tickets. They sell these tickets on their internet sites by putting a small profit on their tickets. While the price for the main company is rising, other internet sites can stay under that price. Likewise, as the number of tickets in the hands of the ticket-selling site decreases, the firm may prefer to sell fewer tickets with higher profits. For this reason, Turkish Airlines' ticket prices are lower than other internet sites in the above example.

Question 3

Behavioral Tactics

1) Precision Tactics:

Precise prices make consumer feel that prices are more realistic, calculated, and fair.

Therefore, consumers will prefer more precise prices over not precise prices.

Compared to Thy, they are less successful in the platform of YouTube and they have just one important advertisement. This shows that Thy is more successful and they make more an effort of advertisement on YouTube.

This advertisement is quite funny. Especially, they want to destroy the perception of the German companies and people also show the quality of their flies. However, compared to Thy which has 29 subtitle languages, they have only two options German and English. The views around 5 million which quite a large number but again it cannot be compared with Thy. As a result, they want to destroy the German perception of the foreign people on their company with an entertaining advertisement.

Billboard

Print and outdoor advertisements relay information to consumers through physical format. Examples of outdoor advertising include billboards, signs and posters. Print and outdoor advertising can direct consumers to other advertising channels, including company websites and web-based social networking platforms.

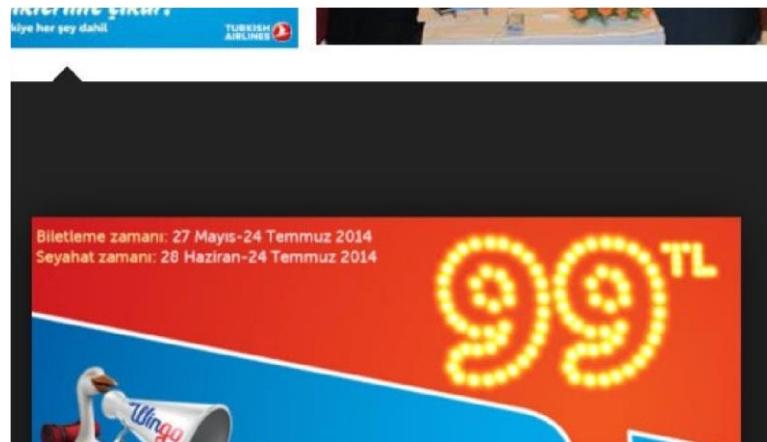

Lufthansa

They try to reach a local crowd via local billboards. They target only the person who sees the billboard.

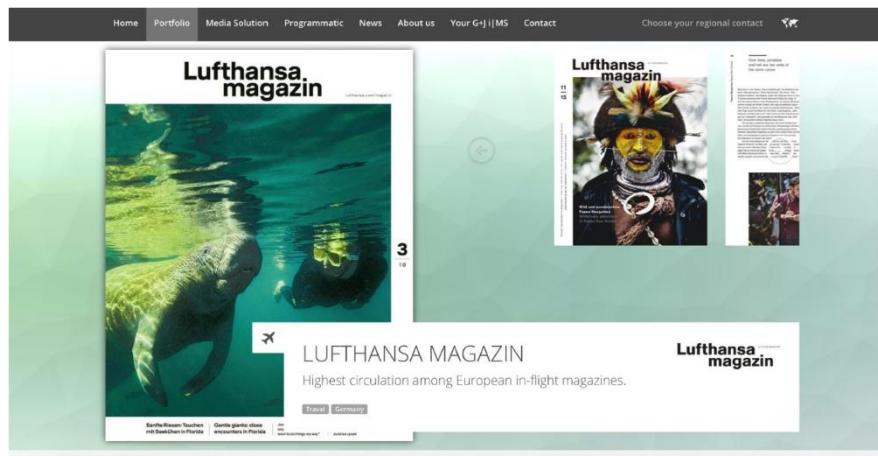

Turkish Airlines

Turkish Airlines also targets a local crowd by following their tradition and moral.

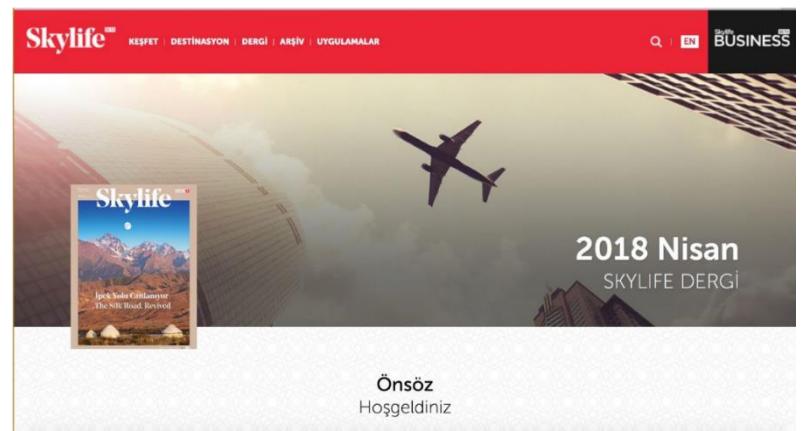

Magazines are not the best way to promote your ads and brand because its a traditional media. Magazines do not sell as they used to now because of new media. Even though they are old media brands can benefit from this line of advertisement. Brands create a way to show their magazines in a way people will read.

Turkish Airlines

Turkish Airlines have their own magazine which shows place all around the Turkey and world for you to visit. They show you best places to see and eat.

Lufthansa

Lufthansa takes a more serious and formal approach in their magazines. They have a better format in style which looks elegant and dedicated.

Turkish Airlines

In Turkish Airlines catalog reflect how globalized they are. Their catalog is more colorful and fun rather than blunt information.

Lufthansa

Lufthansa takes a formal approach as usual.

They have aesthetic which has simple colors.

Buzz Marketing

One of the strategies of word of mouth. It aims to create a whisper around to make people curious and to attract more attention to the product when the product is revealed. There is no example of this marketing technique in Turkish Airlines and Lufthansa Airlines.

Referral Programs

To accelerate the diffusion of product or service satisfaction, it is the creation of tools that enable satisfied consumers to engage with their friends by recommending their experiences.

Turkish Airlines

Miles&Smiles: If you are a member of miles&smiles and if you invite your friends to become members, you can earn 500 bonus miles after your friends complete their first flight (THY, 2018).

Guerilla Marketing

It is a marketing technique that requires creativity, imagination, and fast mobility at its core. In unconventional environments, with unexpected methods, minimum marketing investments and maximum returns are the whole of marketing activities and strategies.

Turkish Airlines did guerilla marketing by using surrounding. This marketing technique aims that make people notice the advertisement in their daily life.

Gamification

Gamification is the process of adding entertainment and user comparisons by adding game fiction and graphics to ordinary games.

Virtual Reality

Virtual reality is a three-dimensional world created by computers. The items appears in a three-dimensional form, it is possible to move, see and hear. It provides a complete test facility for the user.

Lufthansa

In 2016, Lufthansa presented a VR experience for potential customers (Krau A, 2006). They sat the customers in a special chair and, gave customers a joystick.

Customers observed that they were sitting on the new LH Business Class chair, greeted them by their customers, even the hostesses, served food / drinks, and even the scenes, in the most realistic way.

Turkish Airlines

Turkish Airlines offered a VR program for aviation enthusiast students, even though they did not have a VR program for the client. In 2014, the Turkish Airlines Aviation Academy took its place at IFTE, the aviation training fair (Turkish Aviation Academy, 2014). The wanderer to the booth experienced a fun flight experience, liking the flight with a digital technology-supported flight simulation to be used soon.

REPORT 8

RFID Techonology

THY

RFID (Radio Frequency Identification) basically is a technology that minimized the problems about baggage during travelling. Thy offers this technology to passengers who have Miles&Smile membership. If you are a member of Miles&Smiles, with a given 11-digit code, you can easily get in touch and solve your problem about your baggage (RFID Baggage Card, Thy, 2018).

There are some news on the internet about this new techlogical move by Thy. The following new shows that the technology also creates a good perception over the media. The Skylife uses “innovator” adjective for Thy which is good for “Word of Mouth” (Bagaj Takip Sisteminde Değişiklik, 2017, Sky Life).

TÜRK HAVA YOLLARI'NIN YENİ ÜRÜNÜ RFID KARTLARI, BAGAJ TAKİP SİSTEMLERİNDE YENİLİKLER SUNUYOR.

Türk Hava Yolları'nın Miles&Smiles üyelerine özel hazırladığı RFID Bagaj Kartı, seyahat sırasında bagajla ilgili yaşanabilecek olası aksaklılıkların çözümünü kolaylaştırıyor. Aynı zamanda bagaj testim hizmetini artırmayı amaçlıyor.

Bagajınıza yerlestireceğiniz radyo frekansi temelli RFID Bagaj Kartınız, operasyonel birimlere anlık bildirim göndererek takibi ve çözümü hızlandırıyor. RFID Bagaj Kartı, Shop&Miles sitesinden temin edilebiliyor.

Lufthansa

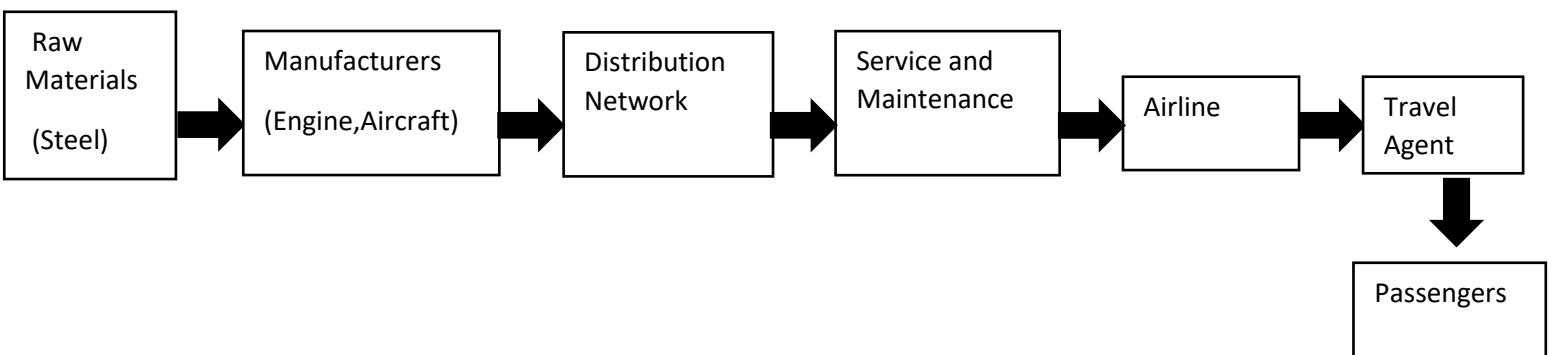

Like THY, also Lufthansa uses RFID Baggage Technology to improve baggage issues while travelling. Lufthansa have started to use RFID back in 2010. Also, they state that, use of the technology increases their efficiency during packaging by 70% and this yields increase in availability (RFID, Lufthansa, 2018). Compared to Thy, they have started earlier to use the RFID technology probably because they dont have just airplane company and also other companies in different sectors.

There are important news on media and it helps to the prestige of the company and “Word of Mouth”.

According to Ioxtra, Lufthansa have cooparted with BAGTAG to use RFID technology to minimize the issues related to baggage during flies (Ioxtra,2018).

The screenshot shows a news article from the website Ioxtra.com. The header features the Ioxtra logo and navigation links for NEWS, RFID TECHNOLOGY, APPLICATION, CONTACT US, and 中文 (Chinese). A search bar is on the right. Below the header, there are two orange buttons: 'RFID' and 'RFID LABEL'. The main title of the article is 'Lufthansa Group will Adopt BAGTAG's RFID Bag Tag'. The article includes a photograph of a hand holding a blue electronic device with an RFID tag attached to a suitcase. The tag displays the text 'BOS' and a barcode. Below the title, the author is listed as 'Nancy' on March 15, 2018. There are social sharing icons for Twitter, Facebook, Google+, and LinkedIn. A 'Recent articles' sidebar on the right lists three other news items: 'YI Tunnel Launches an AI Vending Machine' (April 28, 2018), 'FermRFID and Camso have Announced a RFID Development Agreement' (April 28, 2018), and 'LG CNS Launched the FACTOVA Smart Factory Platform' (April 27, 2018).

Supply Chain

Reverse Logistics

Reverse Logistics aims to reuse of products and materials. Re-use of products and materials is phenomenon in our daily lives too. If we give an example this may be paper recycling. It also helps to saving money and environmental resources. Nowadays, lots of companies make reverse logistics and they try to manage with the waste of materials they have.

Turkish Airlines

THY cares about the climate and environmental responsibility. For the sake of the environment THY makes fuel efficiency programs, uses alternative fuels and they have environmental and waste(disposal) management systems.

According to Environmental and Social Responsibility Report of Turkish Airlines, the Fuel Efficiency Program aimed at increasing fuel efficiency and reducing carbon emissions. Also, effectively managing fuel consumption contributes to profitability because fuel is the biggest cost item for an airline.

Also, THY has an environmental policy called the “Occupational Health and Safety Environment Policy”. This policy cares about the natural resources, emission measurements and wastes. They try to minimize them.

Furthermore, they have a separate way to handle with wastes. They use waste(disposal) management. There are types of wastes in airline system; contaminated packaging materials, hazardous wastes, nonhazardous wastes, electronic wastes and paper wastes. THY overcomes with these wastes by reporting them year to year and act according to their wastes.

Lufthansa Airlines

Lufthansa Group pays lots of attention to the environment.

According to Environmental Report: Recycling on Board(Vreden,2015), Lufthansa started a group-wide initiative called ‘Fly Greener’ to promote environmental awareness on board. In this project, crew members received a treatment about how to properly recycle during a flight. Then, with the help of the Lufthansa flight attendants, they separated waste items and the recyclable items. At the end, recycling on a board is a very beneficial action for the environment.

Not only the flight attendants help this recycling action but also the Lufthansa Technic Service makes a lot of effort to protect the environment and the resources. According to Resource Conservation, Lufthansa Technic sends their 60 percent of the wastes for recycling. In addition, they try to repair rather than throw away. They try to repair the parts of the aircraft as far as possible and by this way they treat their resources in a responsible way.

Also, Lufthansa Airlines have the environmental management which includes energy and resource management to make their energy and resources more economically, ecologically and efficiently.

ATMOSPHERIC

Atmospheric plays a big role in the design and performance of all the businesses in the world, because the place where the product is bought and consumed is ‘atmosphere’ (Krishna, Lwin & Morrin).

The atmosphere encompasses many items ranging from the design of stores to the store’s scent, even the song that plays there

Firms are very careful about the atmosphere, because the atmosphere is essentially unseen factors that connect the consumer to the brand.

THY MİS GİBİ KOKMAYA BAŞLADI

Türk Hava Yolları uzun süren çalışmalar sonucunda kendi markasına ait kokunu çıkardı...

Turkish Airlines official Karahan said that 8 different kinds of smell were produced by bringing raw materials from 25 different countries during the work done since January 2012 and finally 2 smells were go on to the finals (2013). By conducting an evaluation survey, Turkish Airlines found its own smell. Customers commented on the scent as 'happiness, peace, refreshing smell'. The slogan that they put forward for their new smells they produce is 'now you can recognize us when your eyes closed'.

THY müziklerini değiştirdi

Türk Hava Yolları, kabin içi müziklerini yeniledi.

Turkish Airlines renewed its cabin music. Composer and arranger Mesut Kahramanoglu and clarinet artist Serkan Çağrı supervised the new music for departure and landing separately. While the landing music was 'Fresh', the name of the take-off music was 'Motif' (2017).

Turkish Airlines has focused on the brand music, and musics which are playing inside the planes. They realized that musics, which are playing inside the plane, have a big role in the mode of the consumer. Turkish Airlines created a soft music as landing music, and a active music as a take-off music.

Lufthansa creates exclusive atmosphere in new Premium Economy

By Maryann Simson

Lufthansa created a segment called premium-economy on his plane and made a few changes to the service within the plane and on the plane (2017).

Lufthansa has granted access to the Lufthansa Business Class Lounge for an additional charge of $ 25 for its premium-economy ticket-issuing passengers. In the Business Class Lounge, a bottle of water was provided for each guest, plus the next meals were served with a napkin of real metal cutlery, porcelain plates and glass for drinks. At the end, he was pleased with the customers with the hot towel service.
